Choose your words!

Dylan Thomas often created his own wordlists to help him write his poems, and ensure that he chose the best possible words for each line. Sometimes he wrote the lists on his manuscript, as you can see on this worksheet for 'Poem on his birthday' which is on display in our 'Love the Words' Exhibition:

To get you started on writing a poem of your own, choose a word from each of the columns. What unusual combination will you come up with? Will you have an enormous dancing sloth, or a tiny singing tiger? Use this as the starting point for a poem!

tiny	jumping	dragon
surprised	sleeping	fox
enormous	snarling	slug
shy	singing	heron
joyful	flying	kitten
impatient	dancing	tiger hungry	laughing	dolphin playful	swimming	elephant forgetful	roaring	sloth

This is our poem: The happy dancing tiger

Surprised the sleeping slug 'I'm hungry!' roared the dragon

As the enormous elephant swam away.

Don't forget to share your poems with us @DTCSwansea on Twitter, www.facebook.com/DylanThomasCentre or on email to dylanthomas.lit@swansea.gov.uk

